Hunger Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb.

8.—The sensational story of what happened during the Alcatrax prisen's "three days of madness" and the truth about what is still happening on the Federal "Devil's Island" were learned today, despite efforts of Government officials to conceal the real extent of the mutiny and its aftermath.

First disclosure of the inside atory of the January 20 mutiny showed it was far more serious than the wall of official secrecy had permitted the world outside to know.

CAPONE REFUSES TO JOIN RIOTERS

San Francisco Newspaper, However, Says Whitaker Was Among Leaders.

By the Associated Press

SAN PRANCISCO, Pebruary 8.—
The Examiner said today the recent riot among prisoners on Alcatras Island was "far more serious than prison authorities had indicated" and declared it had information that Al Capone and George "Machine Gum" Kelly, two of "the Rock's" most notorious prisoners, had refused to join the uprising.

Two leaders of the rebellion, which occurred January 20, are on hunger strikes in solitary confinement, the paper said it learned from undisclosed sources.

Means Among Loaders.

Among the leaders, the newspaper said, were Norman T. Whitaker, convicted with Gaston Means in a Lindbergh ransom hoax; Ludwig "Dutch" Schmidt, Roger Toughy gang gunman involved in the John Factor kidnap-ing: Marman Waley, killings of year-old Chorge Waytehasenet of John Paul Clines, lieutenant of Paor" Nalson.

The riot started after the shift of Jack Allem, a prisoner who was reportedly refused hospital treatment because of his frequent appearance in the sick list when there wis posts of any affect. The Skaining and he died after an operation for atomsets ulcer. The prison africument ment attributed his death to practicular.

Capene Remains at Post.

When workers in the laundry, where the worst criminals are assigned, quit work, the newspaper said Canone remained at his post despite jeers of "yellow rat,"

Others who refused to join the quickly-spreading mutiny, the story and, were Kelly and two of his associates in the kidnaping of Charles P. Unschel-Harvey Bailey and Albert L. Baise.

So many men were sent to the dungenn in the guards' efforts to stop the screaming and howling prisoners: set up when locked in their cells, that, the newspaper said, the warden ordered eight more cells built in the dungeon.

The newspaper said Whitaker and J. Lucas are still in the dungeon where they are daily given forced feeding. They, with Chase, Schmidt and Waley, went on a hunger strike in the dungeon, but the latter these canticulated as soon as forced feedings were started.

Six Months to Live, Say Doctors; Has Tuberculosis.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(Universal)
-Ralph Capone, brother and gang
leutenant of the notorious "Scarace" Al Capone, was reported today to be dying of tuberculosis complicated by heart disease.

Ralph, released recently from prison after serving three years for income tax evasion, is said to be facing death at the palatial house of his brother on an island ner Miami, Fis. The Florida island astate was purchased by Al Capous shortly before his incarceration in the federal penitentiary for violating the income tax laws.

Shortly after his release from frison, Ralph was taken to a hospitic suffering from tuberculosis and heart disease. According to reliable sources, physicians have given him six months to live.

Of the three Capone brothers, Ralph was, until his conviction the unnoticed member of the faulty. The youngest brother, Franks shot to death in a gun battle with Clearo, Ill., police.

Ralph Capone 'On Spot' Police Here Skeptical

Raiph Capone is on the spot, and has been given only six months to live!

This was the report that reached Chicago from Ralph's Florida hangout today. But the death sentence, the rumor makes plain, was not passed by a double-crossed pal nor is it the result of a little business deal. The executioner will be the dread tuberculosis.

Chicago police, when they heard about the story, shook their heads and said the brother of Al Capone looked pretty healthy the last time he was here having trouble with his sick gingerale company. And then on second thought, the minious of the law said, "So he's sick—sewhat?"

Altogether $87,000 worth of warants, which had been accepted by the county treasurer in payment of tax bills, were taken in the theft. Those found in Stanton's possession are the only ones that have been recovered.

Stanton was seized Wednesday night by policemen and federal department of justice agents for questioning about the whereabouts of one Charles Yarnowski, who is wanted in New Jersey for kidnaping, murder, and bank robbery. Nothing was learned from him about Yarnowski. The prisoner, in his customary snaring way, denied that he knew him.

A woman stood waiting today as a figure so thin as to barely cast a shadow, so sallow as to resemble a short, filtered through the hig vates of the federal prison at eavenworth, Kan.

The wasted figure was that of Murray Humphreys, 36, collegebred "gentleman hoodlum" who succeeded Al Capone to the highfalcoting title of Public Enemy. No. 1.

The Chicago underworld bigwig, reputed black sheep of a once prominent Gold Coast family, had completed his prison term for income tak evasion.

'GOOD BOY' IN PRISON.

Murray had been a good boy inprison, and as such had knocked 108 days from his eighteen-months sentence. He had paid his $5,000 fine long since.

He was a free man. His sole remaining duty to society was to report regularly, until next, April 26, to Walter J. Urich, chief probation officer for the Federal District Court have trict Court here.

None of the "faithful" of the underworld showed up to greet Humphreys as he walked through those grim gates. Only the woman—and a taxicab driver—and a single reporter.

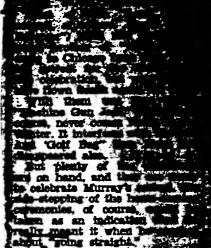

WEARS COSTLY GARB.

For his first appearance outside the gray walls since November h. 1934. the ever-debonair Humphreys chose a gray suit, dark hai and dark overcoat, with tan muifler. The get-up was obviously costly.

Had his hoodlum friends been on hand they would have readily, recognized the dapper attire, but hardly the man himself. Murray, weighed 185 pounds when he survendered to federal agents, here on October 26, 1934.

To the writer, a native Floridien and an eld reporter, this is as it should be. For, believe me, the racket men and the gang men are here—waiting to striking the authorities turn off "the holt." THE AMENITIES OF COUME

Emily Post will doubtless be pleased to hear that in Evanston nowadays—or should we say nowanights?—burglars make their calls in dinner jackets. Four gentlemen so attired visited the apartment of Fred C. Mumm, who, by the way, has a name, that suggests formal attire. The host was absent, but his callers had a pleasant evening and departed by taxi, which, tos, Miss Post would probably say was in good form.

Indeed there is much to be said for keeping in fashion, but will not the adoption of conventional evening wear by burglars raise a new problem for the high-priced custom tailor? In the Capone era the aristocrats of gangdom apparently dressed as other men, but in fact they wore suits ingeniously tailored with great pockets in which the heavy-caliber automatic or revolver could be worn without ostentation.

Can this be done with the tuxedo, or with tails?

Yellowley termed the program successful and reported:

Organized bootleg gangs have been virtually eliminated.

Yellowley disclosed his staff was as large as in the prohibition period, but pointed out that one-third of the Nation's whisky was supplied by plants under his jurisdiction.

Three of the women who testified yesterday at his inquest were being held today and will be arraigned Monday in Women's court on charges of being inmates of a disorderly house. They are Patsy Clarke, Genaro's common-law wife; Evelyn LaGore and Mary Korom.

Genaro was killed, gang fashion, while talking with a girl in a tavern, at 1543 E. Sixty-third at. His executioners fired from an automobile at the curbing.

The man found dead in the prairie had no local police record, or at least need on the his fingerprints.

CAPONE AIDE

O

CHICAGO, Dec. 71—An outbreak of gang warfare today had shattered the calm that has lulled Chicago's underworld during recent months and claimed two victims, one a former Capone chief.

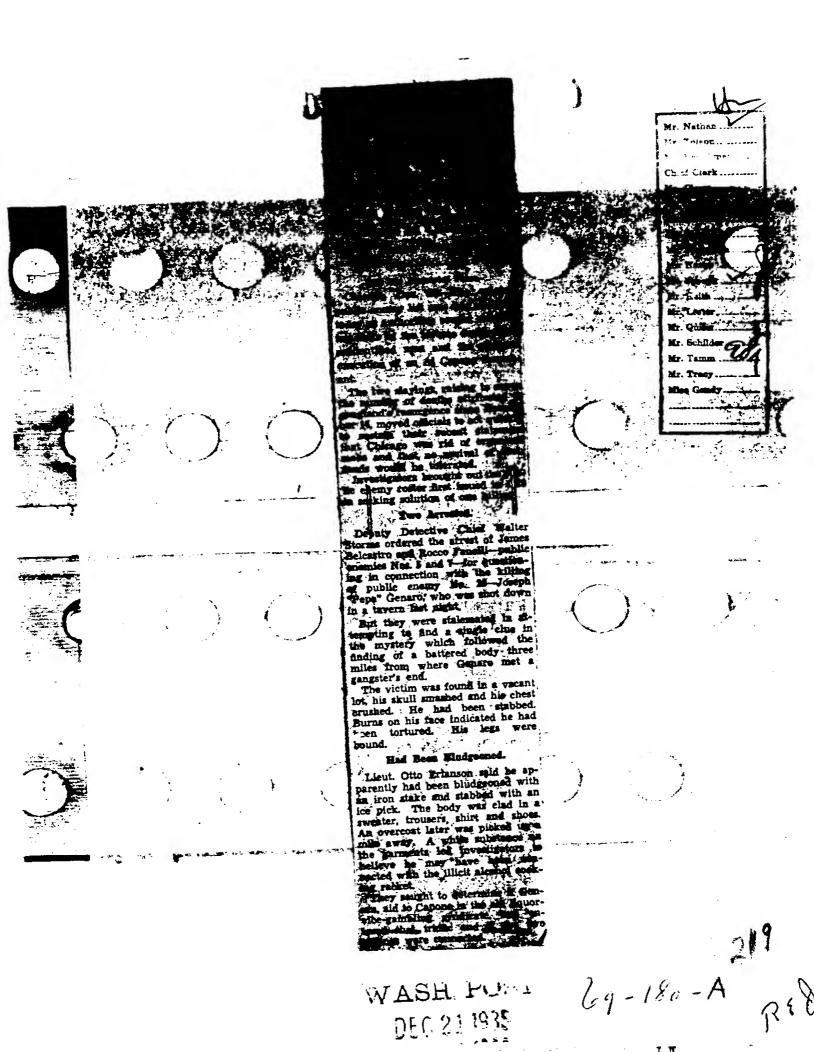

Joseph "Pepe" Genaro, once on the public enemy list and a powerful lieutenant in the Capone organization, was shot to death by three gunmen whose bullets, fired through a saloon window, virtually blew off his head as he stood at the bar.

A few hours later, the trusped body of an unidentified man who held been tortured with fire and beaten to death was found in a log in an outlying district.

CHICAGO, Bec. 20 (AP).—The original public chemy list was dug up again today as authorities sought connecting links in the torture death of an unidentified man and the shotgum execution of an Al Capana liveteness.

an Al Capone lieutenant.

The two slayings, raising to seven the number of deaths attributed to gangland's resurgence since Nov. 14, moved officials to act quickly to sustain their recent claim that Chicago was rid of organised mobs and that no revival of their feuds would be tolerated.

Deputy Detective Chief Storms ordered arrest of James Belcastro and Rocco Fanelli—public enemies Nos. 5 and 7—for questioning in connection with the killing of public enemy No. 26—Joseph "Pepe" Genaro, who was shot down in a taxwen last night.

The victim was found in a vacant lot three miles from where Genaro was killed, his skyll smashed and his chest crushed. He had been stabbed. Burns in his face indicated he had been truted. His legs were bound.

Pepe' Genero, Capone Ally, Shot to Death

Joseph (Pepel Genero, all years old, onetime Capone lieuténant who was always ready to turn a few dollars in alcohol peddling, gambling, or conducting houses of ill fame, was shot to death last night by unidentified assellants.

Genero, whose real name was Joseph Annerino, was seated in a tavern at 1543 East 63d street when an automobile, driven slowly west, passed the front window. From this car two men in the rear seat thrust shotguns and pulled the triggers. Their aim was good and the charges, crashing through the glass of the window, struck Genero in the head.

Killers Fire Twice; Drive On.

The high stool on which he was sitting fell to the floor as he toppled backward. Jessie Warner, 32 years old, 6315 Harper avenue, waitress with whom he had been rolling dice, screamed. The bartenders and a few patrons took cover. But only the two shots were fired and the car of the killers was driven rapidly west to Harper avenue and then north.

Genero lived only a few minutes after he was struck.

There was no accepted theory as to why he had been killed. Nor was it made clear what his recent activities had been.

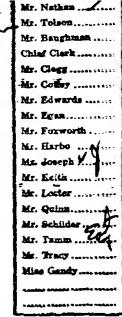

Two women, Patricia Clarks, 30 years old, and Bobby Russell, M. and two men, "Dugo" Frank Costello and Otto Graziano, were taken into custody at 11721 Calumet avenue for questioning. Miss Clarke denied that the had been living with Genero, but admitted she knew him.

Third Man Questioned.

Later William Rondelli, 23, of 35° East 117th street, was seized at the home of his brother at 120 East 105t street. The women and men wer being questioned at the detective bureau early today.

Genero was tried in 1927, for the murder of Michael Vinci, a gangster who, on his deathbed, named him as a killer. He was acquitted. In December, 1929, he was indicted on charges of kidnaping in connection with election disorders in the Twentieth ward, but the cases were not prossed.

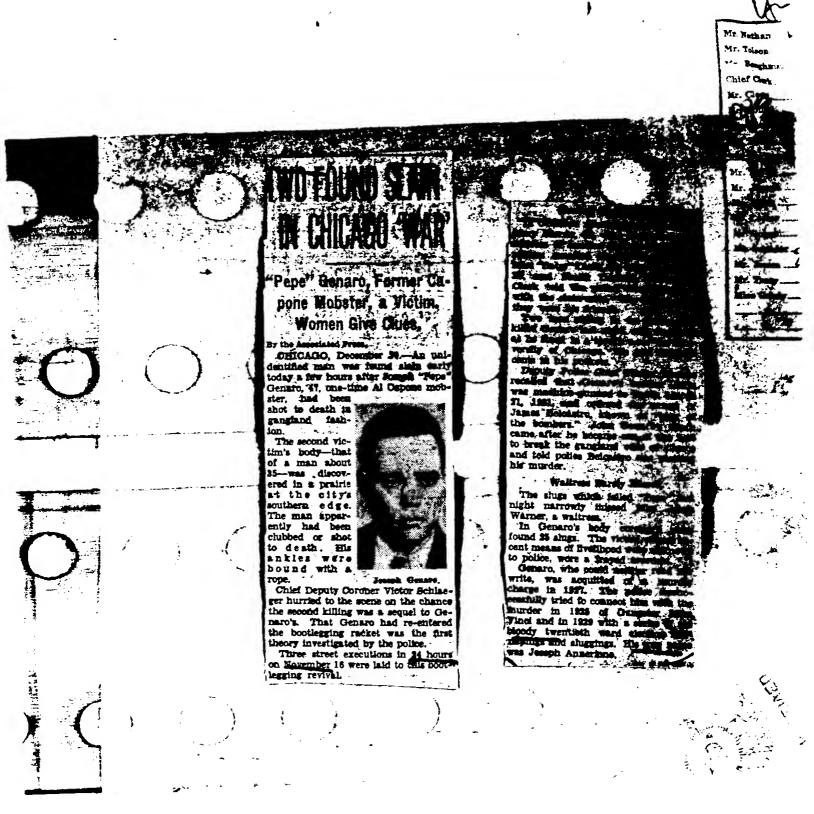

In 1932 he was shot and wounded while he was conducting a gambling house in Calumet City. Ho blamed the attack on Black Handers.

THREE KILLED IN GANG WAR

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (U.P.)— Torn by rival gangs seeting to control its diminishing revenue, the once rich and powerful "Alky" racket was blamed by Federal Agents today for a new outbreak of gang warfare reminiscent of the days when Al Capone ruled the lawless.

The deaths of at least three men were directly attributable to the industry and the slaying of a fourth may also be traced to post-prohibition bootlegging, agents said.

Murdered as they sat in their decrepit black sedan yesterday were Joseph Scaffido, 30, Milwaukee, and his companion, Angelo Kieronomos, 24. And there Frank Stypulowski, 25-year-old paroled convict was sitting in his car with Marie Kolowski, 19, when a shot-gun blast from another car killed him.

Vincent Cesare, minor contractor and suspected extertionist, was "taken for a ride" Thursday and his body dumped along the roadside.

Three of the slayings, climaxed by the murder late yesterday of two hoodlums as they sat in their auto, definitely were linked with affairs of the "alky" racket. The fourth, lacking obvious connections, was believed to have resulted either from the alcohol branch of the underworld, or some other criminal industry.

Dutside the Law

in the history of the criminal courts have been recorded as a result of Uncle Sam's campaign against men who fail to pay their noome taxes:

The way in which such men as all Capone, who were never touched for their various flagrant law violations, were finally imprisoned because they did not pay taxes on their illegal earnings, to still a matter of recent memory: And now the trial of Abe Shushan, former Huey Long aide, in New Orleans, has added another gem.

Shushan was accused of evading income taxes. His defense hinged on the contention that he detained his money wrongrully, hence had no legal title to it and so was not responsible for income taxes on it. Some day, historians are going to find these things very, very hard to understand.

Commissioner Walker Resents Delay in Arraigning Hayes

Tactics of agents of the federal alcohol tax unit were consured by U. E. Commissioner Edwin K. Walter yesterday, when they brought before him Harold Hayes, owner of the Metropole Hotel where Al Capone once had headquarters, on a charge of violating the internal revenue laws.

The agents arrested Hayes July 5, charging they found in the dining room five bottles of imported brandy bearing bogus revenue stamps. But they waited until shortly before noon yesterday, closing time for the commissioner's office, to take Hayes before the commissioner. They asked that his bond be set at $2,000.

Hayes, who once pledged the hotel for bond for Terry Druggan, convicted beer baron, protested that he couldn't raise the bond at once and would be forced to spend the week-end in jail. Said Commissioner Walker:

"It seems to me this defendant could have been brought in at another time than just before closing, so that he could give bund for release."

The commissioner then set the bond at $1,000, permitted Hayes to sign if on his own recognizance without scheduling security, and ordered a hearing Wednesday.

M'GURN WIDOW FACES GIRLS SLAYING INQUIRY

Police Investigate Maze . of Conflicting Stories.

The police last night were investigating a maze of conflicting stories of the whereabouts of Mrs. Louise McGurn when her husband, Machine Gun Jack McGurn. Capone gangster, was slain early Saturday morning in a bowling alley at 805 Milwaukee avenue.

Mrs. McGurn, the former Louise Rolfe, first told the police that she was in her home at 1224 Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, all afternoon and evening Friday and also at the time her husband was murdered. Yester. day Miss Marjorle Swift, 19 years old, granddaughter of the late George informed the police that she and Myr. Chicken and a fifth of brandy. Louise McGurn were making a round of averns on the northwest side whin McGurn was killed.

Women Confront Each Other.

Mrs. McGurn was taken to the Ricine avenue police station and confronted Miss Swift. The gangster's widow said she lied when she told police she had been home all afternoon and evening. She said she was with Miss Swift two hours on Friday afternoon.

Miss Swift then told police that she, too, had been lying. She declared she was with Mrs. McGurn only during the afternoon.

Miss Swift and Miss Mary Dickinson, 18 years old, with whom she rooms in the Streeterville apartment hotel, 195 East Chestnut street, were taken for questioning after the investigators learned that Miss Swift in a lelephone conversation with another girl concerning McGurn, after the murder, had been overheard to say, "Well, they got him."

Denies Knowing McGurn.

Miss Swift denied that she knew McGurn. She said she met Mrs. Mc-Gurn on Feb. 10 and had seen her several times during the last week.

"Louise telephoned me about 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon," Miss Swift at first told police, "and told me to take a North avenue street car and get off at Narragansett avenue, the western end of the line. When I got there she was waiting for me in a tan sedan.

"We drove out to the Pickaninny inn at Harlem and North avenues. There we had something to eat, some paid for everything.

f "Blonde Alibi." Told |

fifer the we went to a coupe of the taverus. We just talked and filled the brandy. She told me she was the famous 'blonde albi' 1/1/1."

[Louise was McGurn's alibi whe he was a suspect in the St. Valentineav massacre in 1929. She told police 11 she and McGurn were in a loop h room at the time of the massacre. couple were not married then.1

Miss Swift, continuing her fi story, said that Louise "seemed a tle apprehensive" at 11 o'clock F.

"She said she would call Jack as home and wake him up and tell him it was his bowling night," Miss Swift continued. "She said he always went bowling Mondays and Fridays.

She Rides Home Again.

"Later she drove me back to Narragansett and North avenues and let me out there. I think it was about 12:50 in the morning. It was a long ride home on the street car and ! don't think I got home until about 2:15 a. m.

"Before we left each other she told me she would call me again Monday morning and make arrangements to get together again. She never did. I read in the papers next morning that her husband had been shot."

After Mrs. McGurn was brought face to face with Miss Swift, the girl said the entire latter part of her story was false.

"I was only with Louise until about 6:30 Friday afternoon," Miss Swift said. "I made up the story about being with her in the evening because I didn't want my roommate to know where I really was.'

Tells of Meeting Louise.

Earlier Miss Swift told of her first meeting with Mrs. McGurn. "Last Monday [Feb. 10] Mary and I had a party for a lot of women in out apartment," she related. "A blonde, whom I remember only as Clarice, brought Louise in and introduced her is a 'gunman's moll.' I thought Clarice was joking at first. But Louise and I liked each other right from the start. Before she came we had been drinking gin. But when she got there she pulled out a roll of bills, and after that we drank good bourbon."

Miss Swift said that Helen Berg, another of the girls at the party, telephoned her Saturday morning after McGurn's murder.

"Helen said: 'Did you see what happened to Louise's husband?'" Miss Swift told the police, "and I replied: 'Yes, but for heaven's sake, keep your mouth shut about it."

Police Hunt Other Girls.

It was apparently this conversation which was overheard and led to Miss Swift's questioning by the police. The police began a search for the other girls who attended the party in Miss Swift's apartment.

In the apartment policemen found two small whips and a pair of toy handcuffs. Miss Swift said the whips were circus souvenirs and the handcuffs were left in her apartment somb time ago by a child visitor.

Miss Swift and Miss Dickinson have been living in the Streeterville apar-ments for six months. They said they are employed by Miss Dickinion's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Dickinion, who lives at the Seneca hotel, across the street from the Streetelville apartments at 200 East Chestnut street. Mrs. Dickinson operates a personal injury investigation bureau. She said the girls work for her as stenographers.

1934 Runaway Is Recalled.

In March, 1934, while Miss Swift and Miss Dickinson were students at the Jennings Seminary for Girls in Aurora, they ran away. They were found a few days later in Memphis, Tenn., where they said they had grown tired of hitch-hiking.

Miss Swift's mother is dead. Her father, Eldred B. Swift, son of the former mayor, is in charge of a construction project at Jacksonville, Morgan county. At the home of Miss Swift's aunt at 5524 Cornell avenue it was said the girl had not lived there for a year and a half.

After Miss Swift and Miss Dickin-

ments for six months. They said son had given their statements the they are employed by Miss Dickin-police permitted them to go. Mrs. how's mother Mrs. Dorothy Dickin. McGurn also was released.

Another phase of the McGurn murider investigation centered on a key found in the siain man's automobile. The car, which had been sought since the slaying, was found early yesterday abandoned in front of 315 North Ada street.

Five keys on a ring were discovered in the car. One of the keys was traced to a safety deposit box in the Oak Park Trust and Savings bank. The bank vault was closed by a time lock at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, however, and the police will not be able to have the box opened until this morning.

McGurn Funeral Today.

McGurn will be buried today. The cortege will proceed from the undertaking rooms at 624 North Western avenue to Mount Carmel cemeter. There will be none of the pomp and circumstance that marked the funerals of gangsters in Al Capone's heyday.
